“Lois and I used to get together and play gin rummy. One afternoon we were talking about her pie crust. She decided she would teach me how to make it. Next day we tried 3 different batches and it just wouldn't come together. She was exhausted but suggested we start again. She didn't believe I couldn't get it. God bless her. I did make a pie next day and took it over for her to try. You should have seen the different expressions on her face. She made the pie from then on. Best cook ever!

“ Lois is my Grandma. We were best friends when I was growing up. So many memories. She was the cool grandma that played ball with you, taught you to play every game imaginable, went skate boarding with you, and best of all would lock my mom (Sue) out of the house so I could stay just one more night. We got in trouble, but it was worth it. I will miss her dearly.

“ The last time I saw Aunt Oey she and Johnny stopped by my office. We talked for awhile and when they got ready to leave I kissed her and told her I loved her and she said "I love you more" and I said "don't bet on it". I have way too many memories to even try to choose one. All I know is that right now it feels like my heart is breaking.
